Desperate Fight with Snake Indians—Six Men Wounded

The Mountaineer of yesterday contains an account of another conflict between a party of 14 packers and an unknown number of Snake Indians The statement of the affair is received from one of the wounded men, J M Greenstreet, who arrived at the Dalles Thursday evening

Five trains were traveling in company in order to be strong enough to meet a possible Indian attack They had travelled along without difficulty until they reached the Bridge Creek House This was on Sunday 1st Here they made camp and placed a strong guard over the corral in which the animals were placed for the night Everything remained quiet until daylight on Monday morning when as the guard was in the act of turning the horses out to graze the Indians charged upon them and attempted to stampede the animals The horses were driven back to the inclosure and an alarm gun fired when the whole party 14 in all turned out to fight with the Indians The savages posted themselves on a ridge overlooking the house and the ground occupied by the packers and for some five hours rained down a galling fire The packers had three rifles and one shot-gun, and each man was armed with a revolver With these they made fight but the Indians had greatly the advantage in the longer range of their guns The Snakes finally discovering that the packers were determined to the last turned their fire indiscriminately on men and horses, but fortunately without fatal result so far as the men were concerned Of the 14 men engaged in the fight six were wounded, as follows John Atterbury shot in the left knee J M Greenstreet, shot in the left arm, Henry A Deadman, shot through the left cheek and ear, Louis Lambert shot in the right ankle, Albert Houston, shot in the left leg, and August Nichols, shot in the back of the neck Of the wounded men Messrs Atterbury and Greenstreet have been brought into town and are receiving the treatment that their condition requires All the wounded men are doing well and are likely to recover We give the names of the men who were in the fight and escaped injury N Piles J P Watson, J A Lohman J W Burke A M Berry, Isaac Hurley, Patrick Gallagher and J H Taylor. In addition to the wounded men the Indians shot and killed 17 horses, and wounded seven or eight others so as to render them worthless They also succeeded in running off three horses and capturing all of the blankets and a portion of the cargoes The trains were so injured that it was impossible to proceed, and so the party were compelled to make their goods as safe as possible and then return to the Dalles, where the majority of them have already arrived

Yesterday morning, Mr Strickland, Agent of the Canyon City Stage Company, left the Dalles accompanied by eight privates of cavalry, to look after the Indians. We hope the time is not distant when this piecemeal order of expeditions will be abandoned, and men enough sent in a body not only to defend themselves, but to do a little fighting for the country at large The Snakes are not to be trifled with, or treated as if they were but an insignificant foe, else they may soon undertake and accomplish more serious and wholesale villainies than heretofore They now command the right of way through, and hold in terror the denizens of an important section of Oregon. If we have troops enough to whip them out at once, they should be promptly set at the work, if we have not the requisite force, steps should be forthwith taken to raise sufficient well equipped troops to punish them handsomely and effectually

THE COMANCHE —From present appearances, the Pacific coast is not to have the protection of a monitor for some time to come Continual disagreements between the committees appointed by San Francisco authority and the contractors are the cause of all the delay. Now the prospects are that nothing can be done to the vessel until Congress has been memorialized and action there taken to demnifying the parties for damage to woodwork, furniture, instruments, etc, by water, alleged to reach $50 000 By the time the difficulties are settled, there will be no immediate demand for a vessel of her class, and she may be exposed in sections, as now, for years How long must the people submit to paltry subterfuges when cupidity takes advantage of dire public necessities?

At 9 o'clock Monday night, June 20th, a heavy shock of an earthquake was felt at Stockton It lasted 20 seconds A gentleman, says the Independent, who paid an evening visit at a residence near St John's (Episcopal) church, says that the building shook violently causing the crystal pendants of the chandeliers to vibrate nearly a minute after the shock had ceased

There is a woman in Sacramento, a Miss Washburn possessed of some property who in leasing houses to her tenants makes it a condition that the lease shall be void in case the French take San Francisco She keeps a hotel, and superintends her own work, even to the painting of the house

The amount of tobacco manufactured in San Joaquin county as inspected by Mr Housman, Inspector of the 1st District of California, is 9 20[illegible] pounds

The operator at L[illegible] says that the telegraph will not be in working order half the summer unless troops are stationed on the line.

LIFE IN THE SOUTH —A Southern woman who had supported her [illegible] Northern city [illegible] was some time ago induced by a report that her uncle was on his deathbed to return to the home of her childhood She has since returned to the North, and contributed to Harper's Magazine a very readable tale, from which we make the following extracts, descriptive of what she saw and heard

The country had been ravaged by two armies [illegible] in the enemy [illegible] Twenty [illegible] importance had taken place within a circuit of [illegible] where my childhood [illegible] two miles removed [illegible] with its [illegible] plantations, its tenantless negro cabins falling to decay its fenceless [illegible] fields overrun with rank weeds all [illegible] in the most unusual state of affairs Go where I would I met no young men, except an occasional soldier on furlough And the old men were organized [illegible] Home Guards with their drills and regular military [illegible] Not a young woman or child over six years was found who was not a member of some military company

I had heard much of the Union sentiment at the South [illegible] no evidence of its existence in this [illegible] unmitigated hatred of Northerners and [illegible] determination to endure all things before surrender was the universal sentiment Fighting to repel invasion "Defending our hearthstones" was the language of every one Our homes and our firesides! Nothing will rouse and fire a people like that cry [illegible] our flag and the Union [illegible] comparison There are multitudes who comprehend nothing of the nature of our Government to whom the Union was but a sounding word and the flag but a patchwork of bunting But when the leaders cry "Our homes are in danger the invader is upon us!" all understand the call If my heart had burned because of the ignorance and injustice of the Northern people concerning the South, the ignorance and injustice of Southerners [illegible] the North was enough to make the very [illegible] And in this mutual misunderstanding between the sections may in my opinion, be found the cause of all our troubles The Southern people would never have sustained their leaders in the secession movement had they not been misled as to the feeling of the North concerning them A single example will give some idea of the delusion prevalent among the people I was conversing carefully and cautiously—for I knew that in their excited state an imprudent word would be like a spark on their freshly-ginned cotton—on the all absorbing topic with a company of intelligent ladies, when one of them asserted that before Fort Sumter had been fired upon the churches of New York and Beecher's church in Brooklyn had flaming placards above the pulpit headed, "Beauty and Booty," containing a call for men to go South—that the officiating ministers took their texts from the placards and gave flaming harangues which culminated and reduced, meant that the South was to be sacked and pillaged and Southern women given up to outrage To my indignant denial of this she replied that G—— was in New York at the time and saw and heard these things The said G—— is a New Englander by birth and education His story had received universal credence in the place As I looked into this woman's honest blue eyes my heart sank Not until that day when the secrets of all hearts shall be revealed will the masses of the Southern people be convinced

THE TENNESSEE RIVER STEAMERS —Mr Taylor, of the Chicago Journal, gives the following graphic description of the steamers plying on the Tennessee river

The steamers that navigate the beautiful Tennessee are not gems of naval architecture, the gilded saloons are "in the mind's eye," the state rooms are in a state of nature; the whole craft is scowy to a degree and dangerously dirty, and yet, I rather think that neither Cleopatra or the Doge of Venice ever floated in a barge so graceful as the Point Rock seemed to me before the battle of Mission Ridge To be sure, she sat on the river like a tub, but in my eyes she "walked the waters like a thing of life" I will paint you a picture if I can the last throw of the locomotive dice boxes has tumbled you out at Bridgeport within an ace of your life, and concluding to take to the water, you make for a tall smoke under the river bank and slide down a slippery path in a turbulent current of box and barrel Beside you, swaying like the tethered elephant in the menagerie, is a broad nosed, amphibious looking creature, apparently built around a very quaint and greasy engine, while you can hardly persuade yourself that the chimneys were not set up on end and thrust above the tree tops simply because there was no room for them below On the edges around this engine are masses of blue, thinly sprinkled with sutlers and contractors Here and there a gentleman in black with a haversack black [illegible] still, represents the Christian Commission and now and then a fellow in nothing in particular represents the Devil's—I hasten to tell you it is only the [illegible] spirit of the printing press

You pick your way amid box and bale to the upper deck, with its warped and creaking floor, and the cabin is before you a flapping canvass reared on the slenderest of umbrella frames, and looking like a tent of a side show Within is neither fire nor light nor seat You plump down incontinently upon the floor, producing a candle and a sandwich from your knapsack button up your coat, and there you are a first class passenger The sluggish steamer moans, the solemn trees begin to glide along the river banks; you are under way, and so giving your blanket a wisp you fall asleep, and make a night of it In the gray of the morning you look out, and to your delight the steamer lies with its nose to the shore, and Bridgeport in plain sight You have been waiting for the fog to lift you have not gone a mile Starved with hunger, and cold, you get under the lee of a log cabin, two stories high, built up square and strong in the middle of the deck and discovering that it is the bullet-proof pilot house, you catch yourself wishing you had a lease of it

Little bells tinkle big bells clang, there is a rush of steam the great wheel, hung on behind, like a reel at the stern of an emigrant's wagon, because there was no room for it aboard begins to turn slow, and the craft swings shoreward, just abreast of a garden, to wood up A couple of a dozen negroes stream dustily out from the lower deck, and the garden fence of red cedar is shipped in ten minutes leaving not a rail or a wreck behind innocent onions and infant cabbages every esculent and succulent of them all left to the tender mercies of hungry pigs and the cold world Bang goes the bell the hungry fire licks up the sweet morsels of cedar the engine gives a great sigh of content, we push bravely against the current, and such is "wooding up" on the Tennessee

A NEW REBEL INVENTION —According to the Baltimore correspondent of the New York World, the rebels propose to resort to the Chinese mode of warfare, should Grant penetrate to the defences of their capitol He writes

"I must mention a new and novel invention by Capt Holden of the rebel army It is nothing more than a stink ball designed to be fired into the works of besiegers to stink them out About the middle of April I was one of several civilians who upon invitation, accompanied a party of officers to Atlee's station on the Central Railroad, ten miles from Richmond to witness some experiments with this ball The ball is an iron shell containing combustible and destructive material as well as odorous matter and in appearance is similar to the [illegible] years ago It is designed to be fired by mortars but in the tests on the occasion referred to the fuse was lighted and the shells allowed to fulminate where they were placed The stench which followed the explosion was the most fetid and villainous that ever outraged the olfactories of man—it provokes sneezing and coughing and produces nausea, rendering it impossible for men to do duty within reach of it A single ball will impregnate the atmosphere for fifty yards around and the fetid compound entering everything it touches emits a stench for a long time The opinion of all who witnessed the experiments was that these balls were a fair offset to Greek fire, and Gen Winder and several other officers of rank who were present, expressed the belief that it would prove more effective for driving off besiegers than anything ever invented Be this as it may if Richmond is ever threatened by a siege the uncertain [illegible] the inventor [illegible] calls his balls, will form a prominent feature in the defensive operations

New York city has a church for every three thousand inhabitants, a groggery for every one hundred.

Oregon Freedmen's Relief Association

ADDRESS

PORTLAND, June 28, 1864

To our Fellow Citizens

The undersigned appointed the executive committee of the Oregon Freedmen's Relief Association for this State and acting as auxiliary to the National Freedmen's Relief Association, wish to call attention to the just claims of this Association upon the humane and patriotic

THE ORIGIN OF THE ASSOCIATION

This Association was organized, under the auspices of the United States Government, like the Sanitary and Christians' Commission after the war commenced, namely, in February, 1862 On the breaking out of the war, it was at once foreseen that the colored people though entirely innocent in the matter, in their utter poverty and helplessness, must be intense sufferers at least while the war lasted and that it was but the dictate of humanity and justice to do what could be done to mitigate their misery As soon as the conflict commenced, information reached us from humane officers, especially chaplains of sufferings unheard of before in the annals of our country Our efforts were quickened, and have continued to be until the present time, by fresh appeals as on the progress of our gallant armies, the colored people came into our lines in utter destitution of all the necessaries of life. In the difficulty of supplying even the soldiers with food and clothing, the colored people would have suffered much more than they did, and many more than have, would have perished

The committee of the National Association is formed from the most reliable gentlemen from New York The names of the President, Francis G Shaw, the Secretaries Messrs Ketchum and Wood the Treasurer Joseph B Collins, of members of the committee, including Rev D Tyng William Cullen Bryant Charles Gould, Mansfield French William Allen Butler and many others are familiar household names with many of you as they are among the people of the Eastern States

In the future the calls upon the exertions of this committee must be very great There are already over six hundred thousand in want They are of every age and sex

Over one hundred thousand able bodied men of the African race carry arms, wear the uniform and aid in sustaining the flag of the Republic, fifty thousand are employed by the Government as teamsters, and in similar avocations The cry is "still they come" The armies of the Union enclose nearly a million of these Freedmen women and children included, and with our advancing columns the number daily increases Nearly four millions are to receive care and protection in the future in a greater or a less degree

All of the facts of the war fully demonstrate this The aid that is thankfully received, deserved, and only justice to a race long oppressed, should not be withheld

In the address of the National Association from which we quote, it is stated

"WHAT WE HAVE DONE FOR THEM, AND PROPOSE IN THE FUTURE

"This is no utopian scheme of benevolence We find them work and teach them how to do it We establish schools to teach them the common duties of life and the elements of knowledge where they are massed waiting the developments of the war To those having money we sell at moderate rates and reinvest the proceeds for their good Those just coming into our lines, in utter destitution of all the necessaries of life, we furnish gratuitously shelter, clothes, medicines, and food The Government furnishes us every possible facility and free transportation for employees and supplies In fine, we propose to do the freed people what we can in their transition to freedom, and whilst they remain in the seething cauldron of war"

The pages of history will tell fearful tales of our inhuman neglect if we after the events of the past three years permit this people to perish for want of the aid we can and should cheerfully bestow Money is needed to purchase the necessaries of life, to sustain teachers and induce industry Every description of merchandise and seeds are wanted for the needy at the various places where they are congregated—to Port Royal S C, Newbern N C Washington, N C Hilton Head, Beaufort Washington, D C, New Orleans La, Natchez Vicksburg, and near the army of the Union in Virginia and Georgia

And now patriotic, generous men and women of Oregon, we ask your aid for the sufferings demand your sympathies, not in words, but in deeds Ministers of him, whose mission was to the poor and despised, we expect your co operation Statesmen may ponder upon the problem of aid for the freedmen and will find that we cannot, if we would escape the responsibility Unless we would have them presence at our doors, imploring with outstretched hands the means of existence, we must aid in placing them in a self sustaining position where they now are No fact exists with more certainty than that the hour is fast approaching when, throughout the extent of our Republic—from the Lakes of the North, down to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the shores of the Atlantic to the Pacific the Sun in its rising and setting will not shine upon a master or a slave

"Time at last sets all things even

ANGEL ISLAND —We learn that three batteries are now building on Angel Island, says the S F Call under the superintendence of Colonel R E DeRussy One of them is on Point Blunt, on the southeasterly portion of the Island, opposite the city, commanding the ship channel leading to the city, and the harbor, the other two are on the northern portion of the Island, commanding the water channel through Racoon Straits Five guns are already mounted, and five or six others will soon be placed in position There are about sixty five soldiers and forty laborers on the Island, which is under the military command of Major G P Andrews

Leonidas Haskell, formerly of San Francisco, and one of Fremont's staff figures in the Cleveland Convention as a delegate from California Ex General McKinstry was also a delegate from somewhere, but not from St Louis where he has resided for the last two years

THE FIRST LINK NORTH —The first link of the telegraph to Puget Sound and Victoria, from Portland was put up in this city yesterday, under the supervision of Superintendent Haines The wire was hoisted to the top of a pole at the corner of Washington and Front streets and was reeled from off coils carried in a two horse wagon, as it passed down Front street to the telegraph mast below the gas works of Messrs Leonard & Green Experienced workmen have been employed that attend to the duties of placing the line in its position, and from what we saw yesterday we predict the enterprise will be speedily accomplished The poles that are used by the present company are the same intended to have been used by the original company three years ago, and are taken standing as they were left by the first projectors To day an effort will be made to stretch the wire across the Willamette river and by Tuesday the work will be energetically inaugurated.

THE FOURTH —We understand the Portland Hibernian Society, the Fenian Brotherhood, the Turn Verein Society, and Company A, of the Volunteer Militia have expressed a preference to attend the celebration at Fort Vancouver Company B and Company C of the State Militia, will celebrate by having a Pic Nic at Gem Grove The Washington Artillery will fire a Federal salute at sun rise and at sun set and a National salute at noon, in this city A portion of the Fire Department are anxious for a representation at Vancouver, and a delegation from each company in the city will attend with one of the machines of the department, but the majority of the firemen are disposed to remain in statu quo We all know what that is this year

A ROGUE ABOUT —S C Hoyt, who escaped in August last from Bannock City, Idaho, and more recently from the Dalles jail, had a cord in this city in the case of Mr Carlisle, which was stolen away on Thursday of this week This is prima facie evidence that the swindler is lurking about in our vicinity some where Sheriff Olney has a standing offer of $100 for his apprehension, and we understand $50 additional is offered by Mr Carlisle

TRANSPORTATION EXTRAORDINARY —Two persons started toward St Helens last evening in skiffs, fastened together, and having on board a new two horse wagon The arrangement struck us as being novel in the extreme, but not to have been wondered at a dozen years ago That system of transportation is about "played out," in Oregon, unless it is necessary to economise, as is the probable case in the present circumstance

THE NEW COUNTY OFFICERS —The County officers elect for Multnomah county, will be "mustered into service" on Tuesday next. The business of the present incumbents is nearly finished up, and having had occasion at various times, to refer to their books and accounts in matters connected with the business of a reporter, we can say that we have found them strict, faithful and creditable to the county

VAGRANTS —We are informed by Superintendent Hale, of Washington Territory, that the Indians which infest our city, belong to none of the tribes that come within the jurisdiction of his Superintendency, but that they are from tribes who have never treated with our Government, and consequently not under the control of Agents This being the case, our officers will have to be under the painful necessity of treating with them, as provided for vagrants

EPISCOPAL CONVOCATION —The convocation of the clergy and laity of this missionary diocese, convened last evening at St. Stephen's Chapel, in this city and will be continued until Monday. The trustees of Trinity School also meet during the session, having in view such arrangements as may be necessary for the two schools under their charge, at Oswego and Milwaukie

CIRCUIT COURT —Circuit Court, Judge Shattuck will adjourn this evening, to meet on Tuesday at 10 o clock A M The adjournment next week will be for a special session, to convene on the 13th of August The case of R B Wilson vs R J Ladd, was decided yesterday by a judgment of $193 33 for the plaintiff In the case of A L Johnson vs. M Seller & Co, judgment was rendered for defendants

RELIGIOUS —The Rev I McCarty, D D, will preach in Trinity Church, corner of Oak and Second streets, to morrow morning, at the usual hour for service There will also be a Missionary meeting in the same church, in the evening Bishop Scott will address the meeting The public are respectfully invited to attend

REMAINS OF LIEUTENANT WATSON —The remains of Lieut Watson, of Company B, 1st Cavalry Oregon Volunteers, who was killed some weeks since in the engagement between Capt Drake's Command and the Snake Indians, was brought to Fort Vancouver by the steamer Wilson G Hunt, yesterday, for interment.

A SMASH UP —The team attached to the street sprinkler took fright on First street yesterday and ran away After spilling all the water the wagon and box were badly smashed The damage was partly repaired last evening and the machine will be on its round to day as usual, laying the dust

NO 4 —The flag staff of Engine Company No 4, will be raised this evening at 6 o'clock We have been requested to call the attention of members to this fact, in order that they may all be present, to witness the first flaunt of the Stars and Stripes upon their flag staff

FINE SADDLERY —We don t believe in a system of puffing, unless it is a pretty good system, and paid for according to the rules of advertising, and we seldom enter into it voluntarily but we must call attention to the fine saddlery of Mr J B Congle, on Front street near the intersection of Washington street Step in there

PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVES —The Pacific States will be represented at the celebration at Vancouver, on Monday, as follows Oregon, by Miss Addie Eckerson; California, by Miss Carrie Hopkins, grand daughter of the late Col E D Baker, and Washington Territory by Miss Louise Sohns

THE TABLEAUX —The tableaux vivants, represented at Willamette Theatre on Thursday evening were well performed The audience was not large, but was a pleasant group, and felt well repaid for the time and money they had expended

FENIAN MEETING —The members of the Fenian Brotherhood will meet to morrow, at 3 o clock P M Rooms corner of Third and Oak streets, up stairs

CORRESPONDENCE —The following correspondence should have appeared yesterday morning

Claims on our Government.—In England a Parliamentary return has been published of all the claims made on our Government by British subjects for seizures of property, imprisonment, or other violations of rights, said to have been committed from the commencement of the civil war to the 31st March 1864 The total number of complaints made during that period was 451, and the total number of dispatches and letters to and from the Foreign Office relating to those complaints was 2 971 The claims include two classes viz injury to person by imprisonment or other means and injury to property by the seizure of ships or cargoes, chiefly on the ground of breaking the blockade The number of cases of personal injury complained of is 73 The others are cases of blockade runners from the days of the Hiawatha and Perthshire down to the latest cases that have been before our Prize Courts

Effect of the Rain on the Deserts.—The late heavy rains have caused the extensive deserts lying between the Truckee and the Carson, if not to blossom as the rose at least to put on quite a coat of green These sterile wastes are becoming covered with a growth of weeds rushes and coarse grass and barley is to be seen growing in rank bunches along the traveled roads The Indians are astonished at this and say they have never before seen anything like it never in the memory of the oldest among them has there at any period fallen such rain at this season of the year They imagine that this great amount of rain thunder and lightning, is all caused by the settlement of the whites among them whom they suppose to have all the elements under their control.—Territorial Enterprise

A Lively Country.—An energetic Mining Superintendent writing from Olive City, Arizona, on the 4th inst, says

We are having fine weather now thermometer 135° in the sun—105° in the shade I sleep on the roof of the house for comfort under two thick blankets but the mosquitoes bite through both of them and two woolen shirts Last night I had to stop writing the wind drove them in from the river in such swarms and to night the fleas are so gentle that I have to brush them off the paper as I write, or turn their flanks and write around them rainbow fashion The mines which are being worked are turning out beautifully

The London Court Journal says the published reports furnished by the commanders of Admiral Kuper's squadron of the behavior of the Armstrong guns, during the bombardment of Kagosima must satisfy every one that whatever excellence those guns may possess in other respects, they are not suitable for naval conflicts

Maximilian the would be Emperor has a great desire to visit New York and order his wearing apparel from Heuston Hastings & Co of that city who are so well known in California as the most successful merchants we ever had and the grand secret of their success is honorable dealing good goods and strict attention to business

One Word to the Ladies.—We supposed that the ne plus ultra in the art had been reached months ago, when we saw for the first time a Grover & Baker Machine in full action but now a lady friend well posted in all matters pertaining thereto, informs us that an important part of the performance escaped our notice and in proof thereof, exhibits to our astonished gaze her little boy's frock embroidered with tasteful and fanciful designs which she informs us was all done—stitching, embroidery and all—on the same machine This is certainly remarkable but nevertheless true and [illegible] all the purchasers of these celebrated machines are as enthusiastic as is our friend the proprietors must be having one continual hymn of praise ascending in their behalf.—New York Examiner

The Dead Mother

On an exceedingly cold and blustry evening in the latter part of the month of December, in the year 185- I had occasion to call at the Washington Hotel—which doubtless, many of my readers will remember stood on the site of the present noble superstructure, the property of A T Stewart, Esq, on the corner of Broadway and Reade street—to confer with an old friend who was sojourning within its comfortable walls

The business—for my visit was strictly of a business character—had reference to the disposal of a patent on a machine for cutting straw, and, although I had no pecuniary interest involved, I was sufficiently interested to make it a just pretext for facing the inclement weather; in fact so accustomed had I become, by long years of toil and exposure to storm cold and sunshine, that I thought little of the night, and walked Broadway careless of the cutting wind which, as I crossed an exposed street, would strike me in the face biting smartly into my sea hardened skin, and leaving behind it a stinging sensation that was not so disagreeable to me as, on that night, it must have been to more sensitive persons

I had crossed Duane street and was half way down the block, when, near a door way, I heard a sobbing cry, as if from a child in deep distress

Nor was I disappointed in my conjecture Turning my head, my eyes rested on a girl of apparently ten years of age, who stood close to the closed door, evidently seeking to escape the piercing cold and the penetrating wind It was a vain effort I looked sharply at the little one—the light of the street lamp shone full on her face—and, to my inexpressible distress, I found that she was very thinly clad. On her feet there were, it is true shoes, but her legs were stockingless On her person there was a short, thin dress of calico while around her shoulders she had a faded and torn shawl, that gave her but little warmth Her dress I felt, was better suited to a warm evening in August than a bleak one in December

Had a thousand dollars been offered me, I could not have passed by that little waif without offering her relief My heart bled for her I felt the tears for the moment, fill my eyes, but I brushed them away as I approached the poor, storm exposed, sobbing child.

"Little one," I said, while I vainly endeavored to suppress a choking sensation in my throat, 'how is it you expose yourself to this terrible weather! Why do you not go home? The street at this hour, at any time, is no place for one of your years, and so thinly clad, too"

The child answered my question with sobs

'Speak, my poor girl," I continued, in softer tones, "Have you no home?"

"Yes, sir," she whispered, as her little, fragile body trembled in the wind like an aspen leaf, "but mother is sick, and there is no fire, and we are very hungry"

"My God!" I cried, as I advanced a step toward the child, and threw a part of my cloak over her. "Where do you live?"

In Elm street, sir Close by"

I will go there with you," I responded Take my hand and lead me to your mother"

The child placed her cold, thin hand in mine and with a trembling voice, in which, however I thought I detected a tone of gladness desired me to turn back to Duane street Through this avenue we walked on to Elm street, a few doors from the corner of which there stood, at that time a two story frame building, which had once been painted yellow, but which by the action of the atmosphere and the dust of the streets, had assumed a dirty brown color Toward this dingy, tumble down dwelling the little girl led me

Bitterly cold and stormy as was the night, the door stood wide open giving ingress, unquestioned, to a hall-way that was on the [illegible] d walls an inch thick with dirt There was no light in the passage way, but, [illegible] an oil lamp burning in the street shed a feeble ray into it, sufficient to show [illegible] there was, a few steps from the door a rickety flight of stairs that led to the second story

"Ma is above," said the child, as she looked up at my face with her large, soft eyes "Oh, sir, I am sure ma will be so glad you have come to her"

"I trust, my child" I replied, "that I may be enabled to relieve your mother and yourself before it is too late"

"This way, sir," cried the girl, as she released my hand, and ran before me up a second flight of stairs that led into attic bed rooms

I followed closely, and as I reached the landing, the child opened the door, and softly said

"Ma, are you asleep? Here is a kind gentleman who says he will help us"

No answer was returned to this appeal by the inmate of the dark, cold room

'Here, child, what is your name?" I asked

"Susy, sir That's ma's name, too"

"Take these pennies, Susy and go to the corner grocery and buy a candle I will remain here until you return"

The child unhesitatingly took the money, and went as directed

In a few minutes she returned with the candle, which I at once lighted by the aid of a pocket phosphorus machine that had just come into use

As the light illuminated the apartment, I glanced hastily around it Not a single article of furniture was there in it On the street side of the room, the ceiling rapidly declined until it was within two or three feet of the flooring, while the wall which divided it from the apartment adjoining, was broken in many places In one corner there was a fire place, in which there were ashes, the remains of a former fire, and in a corner opposite, I noticed a bundle of straw on the floor, on which lay a heap of rags Toward this pile the child ran on entering the room, and falling on her knees, cried out, with joy

"Oh, ma! here's is a good, kind gentleman who says he will help us"

To this second appeal no answer was returned

"Hush, Susy," I said, as I approached the child, 'perhaps your mother is asleep If so, do not awaken her until we have a good fire and something nice and hot for her and you to eat."

"Oh, sir," the child suddenly screamed, as she looked wildly at me, at the same time throwing herself prone on the heap of straw and rags, 'Oh sir! ma is so cold!' Ma dear ma, wake up! It is I, Susy See, here is a gentleman who wants to speak with you. He says, he will help us Ma, dear ma! Oh, you are very, very cold!'

A thought flashed through my mind

"Susy," I whispered, as I knelt by her side and held her to me 'Little one, I fear the worst Your poor mother' as I spoke, I gently drew the thin woolen shawl and tattered blanket aside, and saw that death had been beforehand with us, 'is beyond human hope or care She is with the angels in Heaven where she ever will look down upon and guide you through this vale of tears You have lost a mother on earth, little one but there is One in the land where sorrow is not—where love reigns supreme—where, if you are good and kind, you will rejoin her—the loved and lost

The child as I spoke, looked at me as if she did not comprehend my words and then, with a wild cry threw herself by the side of her dead mother and sobbed as though her heart would break She had realized the great change which had taken place Death until that hour was unknown to the child Even amid all her suffering she had never realized the thought that her mother's sickness could possibly eventuate in depriving her of love and watchful companionship

I had no desire to soothe the child Better I thought leave her to her agony until it had expended itself and then, if possible provide for her until such times as she could be properly taken care of by those who had a right to her guardianship

After a time the child's sobs became less frequent, and finally they ceased to convulse her emaciated body, which cold and the want of proper nourishment had almost reduced to a skeleton

"Susan," I said, as kindly as I could speak "Susan, have you no friends or relatives?"

"None sir"

"What! were you and your mother left entirely alone in this great city?"

"Father, so ma told me often went to sea one day, and the ship sank in its depths, taking all on board down with it"

"Has your mother never mentioned any one else as being related to you and her"

"No, sir" but there," and the child drew from the bosom of the corpse a small locket, and handed it to me

Opening it I found that it contained the miniature of a gentleman of prepossessing appearance, apparently about twenty five years of age

"Who is this supposed to represent, Susan?" I asked

"My father, sir."

The features were not unfamiliar

'Come,' I said, rising "Look at your mother, and then I will take you to my home where you will be well and kindly cared for until something better can be done in your behalf."

The child did as I suggested Her grief was renewed, but it soon expended its force When she had become sufficiently calm, I covered the face of the dead and then with sad reluctance the bereaved one followed me down the flight of stairs to the street

At the corner I met a watchman to whom I told, in substance, the story I have just related At its conclusion I handed him my card Leaving him, I walked, with Susy by my side, toward Broadway where, fortunately, I found an omnibus, which in a little time conveyed us to within a few doors of my residence

My wife, to whom I briefly related my adventure, like the good soul she is, took the child in her arms, and retired with her to her room, where, from the mysterious depths of her wardrobe she soon collected garments that were warm and comfortable, and suited to Susy's size Next, she made her sit down and eat, and afterward, with winning words poured balm into her lacerated heart until she fell into a calm, sweet sleep, such perhaps as she had not enjoyed for months

The following morning, at an early hour, I was at the house of the dead and with the assistance of a sexton on whom I had called on my way down, had the body encoffined before the arrival of the coroner

I gave my testimony as to the manner in which I found the body On being dismissed, a medical gentleman who had previously examined the deceased declared that the woman had died of consumption, the disease being hastened by want of proper medical attendance and nutritious food

A verdict was given in accordance with the facts, and I was subsequently permitted to inter the body On the plate of the lid I had inscribed "Susan Grales, aged—" The family name I obtained from the little girl

Little Susan remained at our home eight months after her mother's death, growing daily in beauty and intelligence My wife became very fond of her, and treated her as her own child

One day a stranger called at the house and desired to see me He was requested to walk into the parlor, where I was seated reading one of Cooper's novels. I rose as the gentleman entered.

"I presume I am addressing Mr Auper?" said he.

"That is my name, sir! Pray, be seated. Can I do anything for you?"

The visitor paused a moment, and then said, in a low, sad voice

"Sir, my name is Grales I am the husband of the woman whom you found dead last winter in an old house in Elm street I have been for weeks, months, searching for her and my little daughter's place of residence At length I came accidentally across an undertaker, who gave me your address, informing me at the same time that you were the kind hearted gentleman who had paid her funeral expenses and took to your home and heart my motherless child"

The features of the man were older by a dozen or more years than those in the miniature, but they were in every other respect the same

I will not go over the meeting of Susan with her father The reader can well imagine all that transpired

I found that Mr Grales was not altogether unfortunate. During his unanticipated and prolonged residence abroad he had accumulated quite a competence, and although he wrote frequently to his unfortunate wife, enclosing from time to time drafts on banking houses in New York, they never, for some unexplained reason, reached her—hence her suffering poverty, sickness and death Her belief was that her husband had perished in the midst of the ocean

Upwards of a quarter of a century had passed since the night I first met Susy in Broadway The last time I saw her, was in Central Park, seated by the side of two lovely girls—her daughters She recognized me on the instant, and springing from her carriage, ran to my side and embraced me calling me her "father" And I—I called her as of old, "Susy" She insisted on my taking a seat by her side, and chirped away as merrily as her daughters about the past and the present

Susan's father died a few months subsequently to her marriage, which was a happy one, leaving her his entire fortune of which, I am happy to say, the income is religiously expended in clothing and educating poor motherless girls, such as she had been

IODINE WATER.

IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DIScovery of modern chemistry, and it is impossible to over-estimate its influence as a remedial agent Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica, and many of the most scientific and practical chemists and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system It is to act upon the

LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM,

and to have great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation, it remained almost useless, until Dr Henry Anders a physician and chemist of New York, after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve without a solvent This, considered impossible by the scientific world is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr J R Chilton of this city and Prof Booth U S Mint, Philadelphia. The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals, and its use recommended to practitioners (see "American Medical Monthly" July 6, 1856, page 78)

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms Consumption Cancer, Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases Rheumatism, Neuralgia Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc

AS A TONIC

Its operation is evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color both-the pale, relaxed and feeble he becomes full, strong and florid
